NEW PEACE MOVES IN RAIL STRIKE STARTED

HOPE FOLLOWS ANNOUNCEMENT OF GOVERNMENT

Drastic Injunction Not To Be Enforced Literally Says Daugherty

HOLD CONFERENCE

Federal Officials Declare They Have No Hand In Parleys.

Washington, Sept. 6.—Decision by the administration that the drastic Daugherty injunction against the striking railway shopmen is not to be enforced literally—to the point of abridgment of free speech and lawful peaceful assembly—was accomplished today by a flurry of reports that new peace moves are afoot to end the nine weeks' strike of the federated shop crafts.

These new peace moves, definite confirmation of which was lacking, were reported to hinge about the efforts of B. M. Jewell, chairman of the shopcraft unions; Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, a pronounced "moderate" among the executives; and T. Dawitt Cuyler, head of the association of railway executives.

It was reported in Washington early today that a conference of railway executives will be summoned to meet either in Washington or New York before the week is out to again start the machinery of adjustment to grinding.

Unusual secrecy surrounded the renewed efforts at adjustment. While details of the reported peace overtures were lacking this morning, the fact that both sides have apparently recognized the need of mutual adjustment was looked upon as a favorable and significant factor in the strike deadlock.

Government officials were quick to disclaim that they had any hand in directing the peace undercurrent. If new moves are on foot, it was said, they emanate entirely from the two parties to the controversy and not from the government.

As a result of the widespread criticism of those features of the Daugherty injunction which would prohibit meetings of strikers and public utterances by their leaders, it is probable that the government will voluntarily accept a modification of the restraining order when the matter comes before Judge Wilkerson in Chicago next Monday.

President Harding and Attorney General Daugherty were both on record today as opposed to any enforcement of the injunction to the point where it conflicts with the constitutional guarantees of free speech and the right of lawful, peaceful assembly.

The sole object of the injunction, Attorney General Daugherty said, was to prevent violence and disorder and to prevent physical interference with transportation. He took the view today that the court's order already has resulted in a marked diminution of disorder. Appeals for deputies have been slower since last Friday than at any time since the strike began, Daugherty said.

It is the policy of Administration to disregard the "oratory" of labor leaders about the injunction, at least no punitive steps are in contemplation against those who have launched bitter verbal attacks against the instrument.

STEPHENS LEADING J. K. VARDAMAN

Jackson, Miss., Sept. 6.—Although early returns gave Hubert Stephens a lead over former U. S. Senator James K. Vardaman in their senatorial run off primary, adherents of the former senator early today refused to accept the figures as indicative of the final return.

Vardaman's strength has always been in the country districts, many of which had not been heard from at an early hour. Estimates at that time gave Stephens a lead of about 8,000 votes.

TURKISH EMPIRE MAY BE RESTORED TO FORMER STATUS

French Officialdom Sympathetic With Nationalists Favors Plan

Paris, Sept. 6.—Practically all of the old Turkish empire which was partitioned among the powers after the world war, may be restored, according to information from official sources today.

French officialdom, which is openly sympathetic with the Turkish nationalists, with whom France has a treaty, is in favor of revision of the treaty of Sevres.

"The allied arms make it possible to enforce the treaty of Versailles but the treaty of Sevres cannot be enforced," said one official. "France desires to restore all of Asia Minor, Thrace and Constantinople to the Turks. Then let France and Great Britain return to their pre-war relationship with Turkey."

The treaty of Sevres has never been ratified.

COAL GAMBLING NOW PRACTICED SAY SENATORS

Unscrupulous Brokers and Speculators Blamed In the Senate

SEEK FEDERAL HELP

Urge Passage of Bill to Give Commission Authority

Washington, Sept. 6.—Gambling in coal is being engaged in today on a big scale by unscrupulous brokers and speculators who have turned from wheat, cotton and other forms of speculation in a systematic attempt to extort exorbitant profits from the country's dire need for fuel, Senators charged today.

Senator Cummins, chairman of the senate interstate commerce committee, says that in his state of Iowa $22 a ton is now being exacted for coal shipped from other states.

He urged the passage of the bill to give the Interstate Commerce Commission blanket authority to distribute coal and curb profiteering as a necessary step toward controlling speculation in coal.

"Outrageously high prices for coal are not only being charged in my state but everywhere that coal is needed," Cummins said.

"I know of one concern that intends to hold all the coal it can for the highest possible prices when cold weather sets in," said Senator Kellogg, Republican of Minnesota. He warned against hoarders as well as profiteers, as a national menace and declared the bill, which the senate again has before it today, should be passed without "any more quibbling or delay."

Senator King, Democrat of Utah, said he not only intended to offer a bill making it a penitentiary offense to gamble or speculate in coal during a fuel emergency like the present one but to ask for a senatorial investigation that would "either unmask the coal robbers and crooks, or force them to disgorge their ill-gotten gains."

Senator Reed, Democrat of Missouri, said he thought the amendment proposed by him to the bill which would require coal operators to furnish bi-weekly reports of the amount of coal mined and shipped, and the prices received for it, would prove "very helpful" in keeping coal prices down.

TWENTY THREE DIE IN OHIO FIRES

Columbus, Sept. 6.—Twenty-three Ohio people were burned to death and 76 injured by fires during August, according to the monthly report of fire Marshal Dykeman made public today. Seven young children were killed and 15 maimed for life, he reports. In addition, one young girl was burned to death by a sparkler, and two boys were blinded, probably for life, by fire crackers. Playing with matches caused the death of two little girls, while the clothes of another caught fire from a bonfire about which she was playing.

"Lightning caused the death of six people," Dykeman stated. "One man was asphyxiated by burned gas fumes in his garage, and two aviators met death from gasoline when their plane dashed to the earth."

HEAD OF STATE REFORM SCHOOL AT LANCASTER IS DISMISSED

Lack of Personal Supervision On Part of Captain Hastings Results in "Loose, Inadequate Administration" Committee Finds

Columbus, Sept. 6.—Captain R. U. Hastings was today dismissed as superintendent of the Boys' Industrial School at Lancaster, effective Monday, Sept. 11, by Director of Public Welfare Macayal, Columbus, Supt. T. C. Jenkins, of the Mansfield Reformatory was immediately appointed by Director Macayal to take temporary charge of the Lancaster school until a permanent appointment is made.

Lack of personal supervision and personal contact, on the part of Captain Hastings, resulting in "a loose, inadequate and ineffective administration" and "excessive, indiscriminate and uncontrolled punishment," was the manner in which Director Macayal summed up the charges upon which he based his discharge of Hastings.

"Further charges are likely," declared Macayal, today. "I intend to completely reorganize the school, until I think that conditions are right again."

Captain Hastings, under the law, has 30 days in which to appeal his dismissal to the state civil service commission for a hearing.

The removal of Captain Hastings, following nine years' service as head of the state reform school at Lancaster, resulted from two recent investigations. The first completed July 6, was conducted by the Ohio Institute of Public Efficiency, headed by R. C. Miles, Columbus. This department, which is not connected officially with state departments but is maintained solely through public contributions, reported at the end of their investigation to Macayal that "inhuman and barbarous" treatment of the boys existed at the school.

Macayal immediately appointed a second committee headed by L. C. Shaw, Akron, chairman of the new prison commission and former vice president of the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Company of Akron.

Other members of the board were: C. H. Mayhugh, Columbus, of the Ohio Institute of Public Efficiency, H. F. Moyer, Dayton, manager of Industrial Relations, Miami Conservancy District; Fred E. Croxton, Columbus, Ohio State University; Walter R. Hammer, Springfield, Department of Public Welfare and S. C. Griffin, Columbus, Department of Public Welfare.

This committee began their investigation at the school on July 9 and conducted a thorough examination for approximately 12 days. More than 1,000 boy inmates and employees of the school were interviewed by the investigators. Formal testimony of 39 of the boys and 36 of the officers and employees was taken. An 83 page report and 580 pages of testimony were submitted to Macayal by the committee at the conclusion of the hearing.

The committee report stressed Captain Hastings' apparent lack of knowledge of what was transpiring at the school. Instances of where officers admitted that such punishment as pulling hair, striking, slapping and beating the bare feet of the boys were cited, notwithstanding direct orders from the superintendent that family officers refrain from corporal punishment.

The committee also deplored the fact that the organization was so operated that there was no one in

ONE KILLED AND THREE WOUNDED AS RESULT OF SHERIFF'S RAID

Feeling Running High Following Shooting By Sheriff and Deputies of Lads Engaged In Playing Joke On Wilmington Pike

BOYS ARE TAKEN FOR HIGHWAYMEN

Shots Fired at Crowd Find Their Mark as Youths Scatter When Officials Open Fire About Nine O'clock Tuesday Night.

Tragedy stalked with death on the trail of nine happy youths who sought diversion in playing boyish pranks along the Wilmington pike, three and one-half miles from Xenia, at nine o'clock Tuesday night, when a passing motorist interpreted their practical joke as an attempt at highway robbery and notified county authorities. In the subsequent shooting one boy was killed, his brother probably fatally shot and two others wounded, one seriously.

The dead boy is Volney Nichols, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Logan Nichols, of a mile and one-half from Xenia, on the Wilmington pike, who was shot through the neck as he fled through the woods to avoid the officers' bullets, and was instantly killed. The injured are: Dorsey Nichols, 16, brother of Volney, who lives at the same address, and who was shot seriously twice. One bullet struck him in the small of the back, piercing his body, with the possibility of having passed through his stomach. The other entered the back just below the right shoulder blade and is lodged somewhere in his body, either in the lung or in the fleshy part of his right chest; Warren Middleton, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Middleton, Wilmington pike, whose left arm below the elbow was torn to pieces by a missile, the bone shattered and the end of the third finger on the left hand shot off; Clarence Keiter, aged 12, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alva Keiter, Wilmington pike, who was struck by a deflected bullet in the left leg below the knee.

As the details of the tragic shooting spread over the city Wednesday morning, mob violence was threatened by groups who gathered on street corners, and kept up the agitation of sentiment against Sheriff Funderburgh, whom they held responsible for the killing. Charges of murder in the first degree were freely spoken in the crowd. The agitation at noon had led to the point where Chief of Police M. E. Graham especially deputized a number of extra policemen in order to forestall violence. Six or eight extra policemen, including Former Chief James Canaday, Former Patrolman Had Karch and Ed Wilkins and Pennsylvania Railroad Detective Cliff Latimer, were among those sworn in by the department to assist in dispersing crowds where the feeling against the Face to Face With Husband Whose Mind Was Affected, Mrs. Luther F. Violet is Shot to Death When She Refuses to Choose Weapon Offered.

Cincinnati, O., Sept. 6.—Face to face with a husband whose mind was affected by illness and brooding until it had conceived the idea of a duel to the death, Mrs. Bertha Violet, 40, wife of Luther F. Violet, a well to do lumber salesman, was shot to death last night in the locked and barricaded bedroom of her sumptuous Westwood home when she refused to choose her weapon from two pistols offered her.

After sending five bullets into his wife's body, Violet turned one of the guns on himself, inflicting a wound in the left temple which resulted in his death early this morning at the city hospital. There were six empty shells in the two weapons found by the police beside the man and his slain wife, so that all of the shots fired found their mark. Two of the bullets passed through Mrs. Violet's left arm, one went entirely through her body after entering the left chest, the fourth lodged in her abdomen and the fifth through her body from the back.

In the room with Violet and his wife were two of their four children, Dorothy, 6, and Burton, 5, the other two being on vacation at their grandmother's home in Paris, Ky. Burton was asleep and Dorothy was just dozing off, she told the police, when she heard her mother scream and then the reports of the pistols.

"Daddy was holding both guns," she said, "when I sat up to see what was scaring mamma. Then all at once both of them fell over on the floor. I tried to wake them up but mamma was awful quiet and daddy lay there breathing terribly loud and wouldn't answer a thing I said."

Relatives of Violet told the police that the man had brooded a lot because he thought he had tuberculosis and malignant cancer. He suffered from a delusion that his wife was not true to him, they said, though both they and the near neighbors declared that her conduct was above reproach. Violet had threatened to kill his wife and himself on several occasions but receipts found in his pocket showed that he had bought the two revolvers recently and apparently had conceived the duel idea as a proper solution for his troubles.

EFFORTS MADE TO RELEASE CULP FROM DAYTON WORKHOUSE MAY SUCCEED

Dayton, O., Sept. 6.—If Rev. Walter W. Culp can get out of the Workhouse he will accept a regular job in Indiana and move his family of wife and nine children to that state. Attorneys today attacked the affidavit against Culp holding that it was fraudulently constructed. Culp eloped from Spring Valley with Esther Hughes, was apprehended in Michigan, brought back and entered a plea of guilty. He was fined $500 and sentenced to a year, which he is now serving in the Dayton Workhouse.

It is charged the affidavit failed to state where he abandoned his wife and family.

Culp took his incarceration in a philosophical manner and wanted to preach at the prison farm but has not been permitted to do so. In the meantime a purse, was made up for his family and the wife and nine moved to Dayton.

Mrs. Culp will again live with her husband provided he maintains a home for herself and the children, two of whom are nine months old twins.

Culp says he'll go straight if given the opportunity.

SENTIMENT FAVORS SHERIFF'S VACATING

Everywhere sentiment seems to demand that the Sheriff vacate his office, but whether L. Funderburgh and his deputies will do this or be suspended, pending the outcome of the shooting affair of Tuesday night, hinges on the question of who has the power to order their suspension.

County Commissioners Wednesday said they believed the power of replacing the Sheriff was within their scope, but they did not believe they were vested with the power to actually suspend or remove him. Prosecuting Attorney J. Kenneth Williamson, said Wednesday afternoon, that the Commissioners have the authority of reappointment, but that he did not know who had power to remove the official. Common Pleas Judge R. I. Gowdy admitted that he did not know where removal authority is properly vested. He said he was interrupted in his vacation by the news of the shooting and, although he came to the city Wednesday afternoon, had not made a complete investigation of the situation.

In the meantime no offer of resignation was forthcoming from the Sheriff's office.

sure would treat you."

The innocent youths were in the midst of this form of harmless pleasure, when the carload of officers arrived on the scene. Unthinking of possible dire results, they laid their trap for the oncoming car. Patrolman Charles Simms, of the Xenia Police Department, who accompanied the county authorities, was sent forth to pick up the fire. It was jerked from his grasp as a snicker escaped from behind the woodpile. The ecstatic moment had arrived. They arose to shout their laughs at the supposedly chagrined motorist. They planned to laugh him out of it, even if he did feel a bit peeved. As they began to sing out their merriment, their voices were frozen on their lips by the bark of a gun. At first they thought somebody in the neighborhood was trying to frighten them with blank cartridges. A second shot rang out in the clear night, and galvanized them into instant action. Impelled by fear and horrified that they had been betrayed by their own harmless trick, three of the boys ran toward the wooded section

LAFOLLETTE SWEEPS STATE BY 2 TO 1 VOTE

Madison, Wis., Sept. 6.—"Fighting Bob" LaFollette, seeking re-nomination as United States senator, has swept Wisconsin by practically a 2 to 1 vote, returns from nearly one half the state today showed. Gov. John J. Blaine proved a fit running mate for Senator LaFollette for his plurality over William J. Morgan will top the 100,000 mark, figures early today indicated.

There was a doubt early today whether either the Democrats or Socialists have polled enough primary votes to maintain their standings on the ballots.

GIRL SCOUTS ENJOY HIKES AND OUTDOOR PARTIES

Did you notice any peculiar signs on the walks and fence-posts Monday?

The mysterious characters were the work of the Girl Scouts, who were laying a trail which ended in a delightful early morning breakfast party for the members.

The trail was made by Patrol One, the members starting about six o'clock, carrying stones and chalk. They laid the trail for Patrol Two. The fun grew greater for Patrol Two when they came near upon Patrol One, the trail signs being easily deciphered by the girls. Some signs characterized danger, some marked "beware" and some were puzzling to the scouts. Finally after finding false trails and other signs, Patrol Two came upon Patrol One preparing the breakfast and giving the "mess call."

On Monday, August 28, the Captain gave a "Kidd Party," when mysterious letters were found describing a hidden treasure and last finding the eats in a woods on the Bellbrook pike.

The Girl Scouts enjoying these good times are Patrol One, Jessie Mae Uhl, Mabel Milburn, Mildred Clark, Margaret Regan, Alice Davis, Mary Smith, Berneda Hoffman and Grace McFadden. Patrol Two, Edna Chambliss, Helen Chambliss, Frela Snaw, Ruth Day, Captain Hazel Schwab, and Lieutenant Cathryn Uhl.

Styles BY LENORE

Charming little figures are seen as children romp and frolic in Central Park, and while there may be an absence of novelty in the costumes worn there is no lack of smartness. A some what chill, cloudy day brought out the adorable little cape of lavender tweed shown in one of the thumbnail sketches. The hood was lined in a lighter shade of satin.

The cunning little lady next to this has on a frock of maize yellow jersey which looks quite Parisian with its colorful applique of a wool nosegay on the panel in front. Such a nosegay as this, by the way, may be bought readymade.

SENSATIONAL PLAY FEATURES GAME

A sensational catch by Schwab in the thirteenth inning, doubling Printz off second with one down, wound up the ball game between Clifton and the South Side Athletics of this city, Monday, which was won by the Xenia team 5 to 3.

The game was hard fought all the way. Regan, in the box for the locals, had one bad inning, the third, when the village lads connected with six safeties for three runs, the only ones they garnered during the pastime.

Hotopp pitched fine ball, allowing the Xenia nine 11 hits, and holding them in check until the sixth stanza, when Crandall slammed out a triple, and scored on Stil's sacrifice fly to center.

Crandall again scored in the eighth when he singled, stole second and came in on Stiles' single to left. Stiles tied the count when Jones sacrificed to deep right. The South End gang led the contest in the thirteenth inning. After Skelly had whiffed, Regan was hit by a pitched ball and Jones ran for him. Murrell popped out for the second death, but Jones stole both second and third, and was prevented from swiping the home plate when Schwab singled, bringing him in. Crandall then two-based viciously to left scoring Schwab, while Stiles popped to Hotopp for the third demise.

The Clifton nine threatened in their half. Hotopp singled to right and Printz scratched a safety and both were safe. Collins fanned and both runners advanced on a double steal. With men on second and third and one out, Sparrow fled to Schwab in center, who doubled Printz at second and the game was over.

Crandall featured the attack of the Xenia team with four hits in five attempts while Les Stiles and M. Leach worked in their old time form at their old positions, second and short, completing three out of five double plays pulled by the South Side team.

The lineup: South Side — F. Leach, 2b; Schwab, cf; Crandall, c; Stiles, 3b; M. Leach, ss; Jones, rf; Weary, lf; Skelly, 1b; Brown, p; Clifton — Edwards, cf; S. Collins, 2b; W. Corry, 1b; F. Collins, ss; N. Cape, 3b; Bowser, c; Printz, lf; Sparrow, rf, and Hotopp, p.

ELEANOR GRACE SAYS

Black, navy and brown seem to be the color basis for the fall and winter season gowns. Of course black is always just black, but the difference between the sheen of soft crepe, the rich lustre of velvet, the odd but engaging gleam of blistered satin give surprising variety of tone. Brown is the great leader for daytime wear, in all shades from dark tete de negre, to fawn. Hawaiian blue, is a beautiful new shade, intensely blue, without being showy. In the new colors a richness of tone has been achieved that will make the season's offerings especially handsome.

The silver bracelets set with rhinestones are deservedly popular. They are effectively pretty and at the same time are inexpensive. We have very good looking ones for $3.00. The three thin gold loops that are worn as a bracelet, are also pretty and are warranted for five years. They only cost 50 cents a set.

AUSTRIA'S WAY OUT IS TO ARREST THE NOTE PRESS.

Confidence that the League of Nations would finally take constructive action toward Austria has been seriously undermined by a statement emanating from Sir Henry Strakosch, president of the Finance Committee of the League.

Sir Henry is represented as saying that the feeling throughout the world is anything but favorable to granting credits to Austria, not only because of the general situation of the money market, but principally because of the disappointment felt at Austria's incapacity to take a single effective step toward financial self-help, despite all the sympathy shown her.

He stated he thought a continuance of the appeal for credits would be a mistaken policy. Sir Henry also advocated free trade (almost impossible for Austria in view of the protection policy of her neighbors) and the immediate abolition of restrictions on commodities, particularly money transactions.

Sir Henry launched a vehement attack on the policy of inflation, saying Austria must arrest the note press, otherwise there was no way out.

PANAMA EARNINGS.

During August 281 ships used the Panama Canal, and the tolls were more than $1,000,000. To maintain that rate of intake, at $1.20 per net ton, would bring in more than $12,000,000 a year. Not till the fiscal year 1921 did the Canal properly demonstrate its earning power. The total earnings then came to $11,415,876.

The Canal was opened, inauspiciously, just after the war started. It was closed to traffic from September 18, 1915, to April 15, 1916. From the low ebb of that year, about $2,400,000, the figures rose to $8,513,933 for 1920. The Canal (including payments to the French company and to Panama for the Zone) cost about $375,000,000 to build. Last March the United States agreed to pay, by installments, $25,000,000 to Colombia by way of reparation. The total cost, exclusive of maintenance, has been approximately $400,000,000. The rate of income on the investment in August was almost precisely 3 per cent. There is every prospect of a steady increase.

A remarkable phase of the developments at Panama has been the disappearance of the calamity-howlers who predicted first that a canal could not be built and then that it could not be made to pay. Nobody remembers them now or their megrims. Yet every public work of magnitude that is started today produces a fresh crop of similar pessimists. The great Canal, with its Atlantean burden of the traffic of the world, is a monumental rebuke to the whole breed of croakers.

THE VANDAL CAMPER.

The knowledge has been driven home to a good many thinking citizens that it is possible to exterminate wild game or flowers or trees. It took a long time and much bitter experience to teach America that lesson, and there is another not wholly learned even yet.

Our forefathers on this continent would have said anyone was crazy who foretold the extermination of pigeons, the killing of more than a million buffalo a year, the destruction of 60 per cent of the original supply of merchantable timber, dangerous reduction of the numbers of elk, antelope, sage hens and so on.

We know today that this is all only too possible, and we pass game laws and other restrictive legislation in a hasty, last-minute effort to preserve whatever remnants we can for posterity.

The unlearned lesson is that the marvellous natural scenery and beautiful wild spots of the nation can be spoiled just as easily and lastingly, by a continuation of present careless treatment. Already echoes from forest and mountain are bringing to the city news that many ideal camp sites and regions of scenic beauty and wonder are practically ruined by the thoughtless action of sojourners in the out-of-doors. Smoldering camp fires which frequently become disastrous conflagrations, unsightly rubbish thrown about, trees unnecessarily felled or hacked into deformity lie in the trail of the vacation camper.

Is it necessary for one who is a gentleman in town to be a vandal in the woods?

THE FADING JOHNSON.

Hiram Johnson is slipping. The returns from California's primaries show that he has been renominated. California hardly could do otherwise after what Johnson has done for her prune orchards and her orange groves. Nevertheless, California no longer loves him as she used to love him.

In 1920 the Johnson shadow fell across the White House. Two years later that shadow had shrunk back within the metes and bounds of California, and is paling even there. The sun of Johnson is within the penumbra of its national eclipse.

Awake back there were Borah and La Follette, Reed and Johnson. Of these, the greatest then was Johnson. He was the tallest of them all. Reed is a bigger national figure today than he was in the League fights. La Follette has held his ground and Borah has, unquestionably, grown. But Johnson is no longer the giant redwood of California's political forests.

OUT ON AN ISLAND

I love islands. They seem so individual and free. Today I took a boat and rowed to one. It rises in solid rock right out of Lake Champlain, just a few miles from the little town of Westport, New York.

This island is only about a quarter of a mile long and hardly a good city block across. But it is beautifully wooded with pine and other trees and presents a picture of peace and happiness.

I took by typewriter and cameras and books and hunted out a lovely spot on a smooth rock where the water washed near. And there I read and wrote for all day, too happy to return to the mainland for evening luncheon.

Here were some blackberries, some bushes with red berries winding paths and rugged rocks that may be centuries in age.

I walked to the center of the island and looked through the tall pines across the magnificent lake to the mountains of Vermont beyond. The gray-green monsters loomed like some huge fence that enclosed a separate world. I could see the white clouds bathe their summits and then pass along to other points. The blue of the sky seemed such a glorious background. I stood thrilled and enthralled. For the entire picture was framed by great towering pines.

EDITOR OF LABOR REVIEW

RELEASED AFTER ARREST

Memphis, Tenn., Sept. 5.—Jake Cohen, editor of the Labor Review, a leading southern labor organ, was released today on $1,000 bond following his arrest on a charge of violating the "Chicago injunction" by publishing an editorial in his paper attacking non-union railway workers.

Cohen declared the editorial was published prior to application by Attorney General Daugherty for the injunction.

FAID TO AGREE

Washington, Sept. 5.—Although most of the anthracite operators in Pennsylvania had thus far failed to indicate a willingness to abide by prices in effect on April 1 when production is resumed, some of them have agreed to adhere to the price scale in effect when the strike started. Secretary of Commerce Hoover said today. The April 1 prices ranged from $7.50 to $8.25 a ton for coal generally used in households.

whose branches reached out as though to compete with the other beauties of this scene.

And I was alone, here on this island—and yet not alone!

For where beauty and inspiration is, there can be no loneliness, no lack of divine communication.

As the day grew old, deep shadows began to cast themselves across the rocks and through the open spaces of the woods. A wind that had played soft tunes through the trees all day, became mellow and mild. Brilliant colors in streaks and fire-red masses began to hide behind the chain of mountains that seem to surround this small spot of earth. Such a sunset! No words are adequate for description. But oh, how beautiful.

Soon the stars began to appear, one by one, in the sky above, and I took my belongings and climbed into the boat, and rowed back to my tent on the mainland.

And there watched the shadows of night hover over the beloved island until my eyes grew heavy and I passed into dreams of islands.

HOBBIES.

When one retires from active life, from all its turmoil, stress and strife, to spend his closing years, some silly fad he must pursue, some hobby he must keep in view, or he'll be soaked in tears. For idle days drag slowly by to one who made the gravel fly in time of pep and strength; and he will find a hobby pays; it gives some charm to empty days, and will reduce their length. I am collecting stovepipe hats once worn by famous plutocrats, and seers and poets meek; I have the lid that Lincoln wore when he was clerking in a store at seven bucks per week. Collecting bonnets drives away the dust, the mildew and decay that years accumulate, and oh, it fills my heart with smiles, to view my stock of storied tiles, the kellys of the great. Now, where I live old men are thick; they rest, the ancient, tired and sick, beside the ocean blue; and when the sea has lost its charm, the old boys view things with alarm, for they have naught to do. I tell them that collecting cats, or overshoes, or stovepipe hats, or tin tobacco tags, will make them all seem young again, these old and haggard, weary men, so time no longer drags. But they were used to large affairs, when in their old time city lairs, they don't know how to play; and so they yawn and murmur, "Rats!" while I go on collecting hats to drive the gloom away.

ONE KILLED; THREE INJURED. RESULT OF A BOYISH PRANK

within the fence, to escape the flying bullets. Before they had sought shelter, all three of them had fallen. Four of the youths, quick-thinking, sought shelter behind the woodpile, where they hugged the ground in abject fear. One, Warren Middleton, was frozen in his tracks, and received a gun charge in his arm before he could seek shelter.

"Charlie, for God's sake don't shoot," cried Donald Weaver, 22, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Weaver, near whose home the shooting took place. His terror-stricken cry, directed at Patrolman Simms, whom he knew well, came in a pause in the shooting after probably ten shots had been fired, according to witnesses. His appeal was choked off as it was welcomed by another volley from the officers. A second time the firing paused, as the officers attempted to climb the fence, and reload their guns. "For God's sake, Charlie, don't shoot any more," appealed Donald, emerging from the wood pile.

"Come out and hold up your hands, you—" cried the officer, with a curse. Donald walked out with his hands above his head. It was some time before officers realized the terrible mistake had been made, as their minds gradually absorbed the gruesome details. In the woods nearby, the officers were still running down the wounded. There they found Dorsey Nichols, gasping for breath. He was picked up and with Warren Middleton, was brought to the city in the officer's car and taken to the Espey Hospital. A passing motorist offered to bring Volney Nichols to the hospital, but death had taken place before he could be removed. The body was later taken to the Whitmer Undertaking Establishment in this city.

The gruesome ride from the scene of the shooting to the hospital here was a quiet one broken only by the groans of the wounded boys. Realizing that they had shot down a criminal, harmless young men having a night of fun, the officers could do little more than look at each other.

The report of a man and woman, names unknown, brought the officers on their tragic quest of highwaymen. The couple was a victim of the boyish prank. As they approached the tire in the road, the woman drove and the man stood on the running board leaning forward to pick up the "bait." As he did so it was jerked away and he was met by the mocking jeers of the practical jokers. Frightened at the occurrence, he is thought to have misinterpreted the act as an attempt at hold up. His report to Sheriff Funderburg caused the official to pick up Deputy Sheriff Joseph Day, William Burns, manager of Kil Kare Park, who is a special deputy, and Patrolman Charles Simms. They say that when Simms attempted to pick up the tire from the road that the boys began to dart toward the trees in the woods on the east side of the fence. They claim their figures were only dimly discernible in the moonlight, and that they were taken for men. The officers claim they shouted at the fleeing figures to halt, and that when their command was ignored they opened fire.

Donald Weaver, one of the party of boys, said Wednesday he is ready to swear that the officers uttered no warning or command to halt, before they opened fire. His story follows: "We had an old tire wrapped up in paper like a new one, and we were leaving it along the road for passing motorists to pick up. When they'd go to pick it up, we'd pull it in by a wire and then give them the laugh. All of them took it well and one fellow said he wanted to treat us."

"I guess somebody drove to town and said there were robbers out there, and came out. One of them, I don't know which, got out to get the tire and when he got hold of it we jerked it out of his hand. They began shooting right away—never said 'hands up' or anything—just began to shoot. Volney Nichols, the boy who was killed, ran down the ditch. We were on the left side of the road going toward Wilmington. I don't think Warren Middleton ran because he was standing by the fence all the time. I tried to tell Simms what we were doing, but I couldn't make him understand anything."

"When they first started the shooting I thought somebody from around there was trying to scare us with blank cartridges. Then I heard the bullets whiz past. One of them dug up the dirt about a half-foot from me and I ducked behind the woodpile and laid down flat on the ground."

I thought sure a bullet would come through the cracks in the wood pile. Vic, my brother, had been pulling the tire and he ducked behind the woodpile with Clarence Rheubart, Elmer Middleton, Charles Keiter and myself. They must have shot about ten times the first time, and when they paused I stuck my head up and said 'Charlie, for God's sake quit shooting.' I just got that far when they started shooting again and I ducked. They must have shot ten more times. Then Simms stuck his gun around the woodpile, and said 'Don't run you. Don't run.' Charlie was the only one who said anything any time. The rest of them kept still, Charlie said 'Don't run, I'll kill everyone of you.' Two of them were shooting. But they never said 'hands up'—they never said a word.

Little 12-year-old Clarence Keiter, son of Alva Keiter of the Wilmington pike and grandson of D. B. Keiter, Washington St., this city, told a similar story, Wednesday. Stories of all the boys coincide, while parents of some of the youths, who were spending the evening at the Frank Weaver home a short distance away knew of their fun and could hear the tire pulled across the road each time a motorist fell for the ruse. The men in the party who ran to the scene when the shooting began, also say they heard no commands.

The condition of Dorsey Nichols, who is in Espey Hospital suffering from two bullet wounds, is considered grave. The lad was taken to the hospital with Warren Middleton by the officers following the shooting. Dr. W. A. Galloway, who has charge of the hospital in the absence of Dr. Paul Espey, with Dr. C. C. McPherson, Dr. A. D. DeHaven and assisted by Marshall Best, medical student, dressed the injuries of both boys.

Because of the precarious position of the imbedded bullet and the condition of the youth, no attempt was made to operate on Dorsey Nichols or to probe for the bullet, which struck him below the right shoulder blade. Surgeons say it may have lodged in the lung or been deflected and be in the fleshy part of his body under his arm. The bullet, which passed clear through the boy's body is thought certain to have pierced vital organs, and it is thought possible that the stomach was punctured. The boy suffered considerable pain, Tuesday night, but was resting comfortably Wednesday and his condition was better than anticipated by surgeons. He knew his brother fell during the shooting and was informed of his death Wednesday.

Warren Middleton, the other boy at the hospital, is suffering from a terribly lacerated left arm below the elbow, although surgeons say they will be able to save the member. The bullet, tore the flesh away on both sides of the arm, and splintered the bone. He was more comfortable Wednesday. Clarence Keiter's wound is not considered serious. He is at home. Besides the dead boy and the youths wounded, members of the practical joke party were Donald Weaver, 22, and his brother, Victor Weaver, 16, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Weaver, Elmer Middleton, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Middleton, Wilmington pike, and a brother of the wounded boy; Charles Keiter, 16, brother of Clarence Keiter, and a son of Mr. and Mrs. Alva Keiter, Wilmington pike; Clarence Rheubart, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Rheubart, of the Stone road.

With tension on the streets Wednesday at fever pitch, and talk of the shooting on the lips of crowds who gathered on the corners, attention was turned to the office of Prosecuting Attorney J. Kenneth Williamson from whom the next move is expected, in the tragic drama. Although he refused to issue an official statement Wednesday, the Prosecutor indicated that charges of manslaughter will be filed against the officers if the forthcoming investigation of the shooting indicates evidence warranting the charges, and they will be considered by the grand jury either at a special or the next regular session of that body.

Decision on this point, it is believed, will rest largely on the verdict issued by Dr. R. L. Haines, County Coroner, following his official inquest, which he intimates he will postpone for several days, to allow the feeling in the case to cool down. On the result of the coroner's probe and his decision, hinges the action of the prosecutor. Prosecutor Williamson said Wednesday that there would be no need for immediate manslaughter charges, anyway, as there was no possibility of the men involved leaving the city, and the charges can be preferred anytime before the grand jury is called, if they are considered necessary.

While the police department was preparing for an emergency or possible mob violence, aimed at the Sheriff and his Deputies, Sheriff Funderburg Wednesday refused to leave the city until the tense situation had blown over.

"I have only one time to die," he told friends who suggested that he might avoid personal injury by leaving the city. In the crowds on the streets Wednesday, talk that the officers should be charged with first degree murder, were freely heard, and substantiated by some attorneys. It is believed that the usual charge in such a case is manslaughter. Wednesday morning Logan Nichols, father of the slain boy, J. R. Rheubart and Frank Weaver, fathers of others boys involved in the shooting, visited several attorneys' offices, in an effort to learn the possibility of prosecuting criminal charges against the officers. They were advised to await the action of the Coroner and Prosecuting Attorney, and if no steps were taken by them, they could then file formal charges themselves.

Volney Nichols, the boy who died instantly at the hands of the officers, is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Logan Nichols, who live one and one-half miles from Xenia, on the Wilmington pike, where they operate a three-acre truck farm. He also leaves, besides his wounded brother, Dorsey, the following brothers and sisters: Porter, Stanley, Lacey, Hazel and Evelyn, at home, Mrs. Nettie Nichols of Dayton, and Miss Etta Nichols of Cincinnati. The last two sisters were notified and have come to this city. Mrs. Nichols, mother of the slain youth, has been ill for a week, and as a result of the shock following the Tuesday night shooting, her condition is said to be serious. Logan Nichols, is originally a Kentuckian. He is considerably wrought up over the killing and Wednesday morning vowed he would seek every resource of the law to gain vengeance for the death of one son and the possibly fatal wounding of another.

SEEK TWO BURGLARS

Cincinnati, Sept. 6.—The police of this city were asked early today to be on the lookout for two men who overpowered Fred Kordel, manager of the Hellman Clothing Company store at Amelia, O., while he was at work after closing hours last night, gagged him and left him tied to a chair while they looted the store.

JAPANESE PUT OUT BY RUSS ENVOYS' BAGGY TROUSERS

Chang Chun, Manchuria, Sept. 6.—The second session of the Russo-Japanese conference, which was arranged to settle the Siberian issue, convened today under a cloud of hostility which boded ill for future results. The Japanese have been cleverly out-manuevered.

Joffe and Yanson, Russian delegates bear credentials from the governments of both Soviet Russia and the Far East Republic thus compelling the Japanese delegates to negotiate with all Russia instead of with Soviet Russia and the Far East Republic, separately. The preliminary session was marked by heated arguments. The Japanese, being out-generalled, took exception to the Russian method of diplomacy.

The Japanese delegates were spick and span in silk hats and morning coats were considerably put out when the Russians showed up in sack suits with trousers that were obviously baggy at the knees.

The anger of the Japanese was intensified further by the fact that the Russians spurned tea and drank whiskey when they felt the need of a stimulant.

The Russians issued a communique condemning the refusal of the Japanese to allow Press correspondents to attend the session. M. Joffe said the Russians stood for open diplomacy on all subjects.

Willard Whitmer of Chicago, who had spent two weeks visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Currie of West Church Street, left Saturday for his home. He stopped off enroute for a visit of a few days in Richmond.

SLAUGHTER BEGUN BY TURK ARMIES OF THE CHRISTIANS

Enemy Only 75 Miles From Smyrna, Seat of Greek Position

London, September 6.—The advancing Turkish Nationalist army in Analia has begun the massacre of Christians, according to reports from Athens today. The Turks are only 75 miles from Smyrna, seat of the Greek headquarters.

Allied warships, including an American man of war, are on their way to Smyrna to prevent the Turks from entering the city. The allies may intervene with troops.

The Greek army is in retreat all along Anatolian battle front, putting up only weak rear guard resistance. The allied governments commissioners at Smyrna are trying to arrange an armistice.

Advices from Athens claimed the Turkish losses have been very heavy. The Greeks admit evacuation of Eskisheir, but claim that the Turks have not yet occupied the city.

The Greeks have evacuated Broussa, causing the whole northern end of the Greek front to crumble.

British officials declare that the allies will not leave Constantinople even if the Turkish nationalists make such a demand.

Premier Lloyd George will preside at a cabinet meeting tomorrow when a definite policy towards the new Near East crisis will be worked out.

NO SIGNS OF HARD TIMES IN GERMANY ARE SEEN BY LOCAL WOMAN WHO WRITES INTERESTING ACCOUNT OF CONDITIONS IN THAT COUNTRY AS SHE FOUND THEM

A word picture of the existing conditions in Germany in contrast with the general impression held by the American public is painted in an interesting letter received by Mrs. Mary Meredith, of North King Street, from her sister, Mrs. Joseph Littell written during Mrs. Littell's European trip this summer.

Mrs. Littell with her brother, Edmund Munge, of Jackson, Mo., and her son, George Littell, spent several weeks touring the continent and the British Isles, and gained a valuable insight into the conditions of the countries.

The following extracts, concerning Germany are of interest:

"There are absolutely no signs of hard times or poverty here that we have seen (Germany), but I presume we see only the better class. All are well dressed, the restaurants are full, the store windows attractive, some private homes that would rival those of any other country, the streets clean, public buildings imposing. It is really a handsome city (Cologne), as we saw pretty well from a touring charabanc this morning. We saw General Ludendorff's splendid mansion and several others belonging to generals whose names we did not know—also the house of Rathenau, who was lately murdered.

We are almost ashamed to eat our food at the ridiculously low prices charged! A waiter takes a big fat wallet from his pocket and extracts therefrom paper change in neat piles; ten dollars worth of German money comes wrapped in bundles such as you see in banks. Our last exchange made in Coblenz, was 770 marks for one dollar!

Germany is a busy place. Everyone is working and up early at it, in contrast to England, where the stores were not open till nine o'clock. We were struck by the apathetic look in many of the faces in Coblenz. In all these cities—Cologne, Mainz, Stuttgart, Coblenz, are foreign soldiers—British, French (so hated), Belgian, American.

We think that the Germans are none too eager to help English-speaking people, though we have met with no discourtesy.

Men and women are busy in the fields, some cutting hay and wheat with a sickle, some with a scythe, raking it by hand, tying up sheaves and making shocks, or pitching hay onto wagons, drawn by oxen. No fences to mark off the fields, no cattle grazing excepting as we neared Oberammergau, where we saw a dozen or so cows, the very first we had seen in Germany. This was in great contrast to Holland, where herds of cows grazed everywhere.

All the farm wagons that we saw here were drawn by oxen. As in France, the farmers appear to live in small villages. The houses that we passed were neat and tidy, many of them containing both dwelling and stable in one building. We saw some flowers, but by no means as many as in England. Some miles before we reached Oberammergau Swiss style of architecture became more evident, most of the houses having balconies with flower-filled window boxes. All along the road were pedestrians on their pilgrimage to the Passion Play knapsacks on their backs, a cane to keep their feet firm. Shrines occurred at frequent intervals, most of them containing an image of the crucified Christ.

At one village we passed there was a huge monastery, with many buildings, and soon after we reached Oberammergau, situated in a valley, although 4,000 feet above sea-level, and surrounded by high mountains. On the highest of which some pious persons had placed a great cross, appearing small but distinct from the valley. It must have been a laborious undertaking to erect it, for the ascent looked impossible. The houses of the village are unique. All stuccoed and stained white, some of them with elaborate designs painted in colors over the doors and windows—actual pictures of people and animals, the effect very pleasing. Anton Lang's house, quite large and pretentious, with vines and flowers to add to its attractiveness, is probably the finest-looking dwelling.

Mrs. Lang, through whom we made arrangement for tickets and lodging, speaks excellent English and has a charming personality, and we found her always busy with tourists, many of whom demanded impossible privileges. She gave us rooms in a house at the end of the village—clean, comfortable, well-supplied rooms, far from the noise and traffic—and we ate lunch and dinner at her house, where at least a hundred tourists, chiefly Americans, took their meals. There were many other eating places out in town, generally filled with patrons. Stores with many and varied articles for sale, and thousands of picture postcards. The streets were thronged with people, and little, Victoria-like carriages, drawn by one or two horses and driven by men in Ty. rolese costume. Busses emptied their loads into the already crowded streets. It is remarkable how that small village manages the hordes that invade it during the season. Of course the whole town is in gala dress for its decennial festival.

The Passion Play began at eight in the morning, and it was a sight to see the vast crowd wending its way to the big theatre, which, with its many entrances, many ushers and well worked out system, soon absorbed the throng. There were beside the forty-five hundred seated spectators, sixteen hundred standing, and the audience was under shelter, while the stage itself was open to the sky. The dignity, bauty and impressiveness of that monumental performance cannot be exaggerated. The scenery, costumes, color-arrangement, the acting, the chorus and orchestra—were, all beyond praise. Anton Lang's acting of the role of Christ was almost flawless in its nobility of conception. It would be folly to attempt a description but the play was impressive to the point of suffocation at times. Part one lasted from eight till nearly noon; part two from two until about six, yet the performance was never for one moment tiresome. We were, however, worn out physically and mentally, at the end of the day, from the strain of intense attention. It was apparent to us that "gay Paris" is not gay at all. The restaurants are comparatively empty—the side-walk cafes—a condition all the more noticeable after Germany, where the eating places are well-filled also the passenger trains. It appeared to us that France is worse off than Germany—as of course she must be owing to her work of restoration—and that Germany could pay. It is absurd for passing tourists to attempt a final judgment but that was our inevitable impression. The railroad trains everywhere in Germany were crowded.

NO FINAL ACTION TAKEN IN QUESTION INVOLVING SCHOOL

The final action of the Xenia City School Board, in connection with the proposed action in moving pupils of the Opportunity School to the Spring Hill Building, which was vigorously opposed by residents of Springfield and patrons of the school, is still a matter of question. The solving of the problems that confronted the Board, and which led them to the proposed action, at a meeting of a committee of residents of Springfield Hill and patrons of the school at the home of Robert Kingsbury on Rogers Street, Tuesday night, is thought to have brought the matter to a head, and will result in definite action soon.

Members of the committee, including members of the Mother's Circle of Springfield Hill School, and backers of the petition, circulated over the city opposing the plan, with Superintendent of Schools C. A. Waltz, met at the Augsburg home, Tuesday evening and presented arguments, pro and con, in connection with the proposed action.

The reason of the residents of Springfield Hill and patrons of the school, for opposing the plan, as voiced in the petition circulated over the neighborhood, are that the moving of the pupils "is an injustice and decided wrong inflicted upon the patrons and pupils of Springfield Hill School, and that, to become a dumping ground for the other schools of the city, is a proposition against which they most emphatically protest, as being an imposition upon the Springfield Hill School, endangering the morals of its pupils and working against the best interests of their local community."

The opposition and the reasons of the residents were met at the meeting by Superintendent Waltz, from an economic standpoint, this factor playing a large part in the proposed movement of the pupils to the Springfield Hill Building. According to Superintendent Waltz, the Parish House, which housed the pupils since the inauguration in this city, is not fit for such because of hygienic and sanitary reasons.

Members of the committee presented to Superintendent Waltz, the matter of the recent Community Chest fund, when three-thirtieths of the amount raised was donated to the Opportunity School, making a total of $1200. The School board has received $700 dollars of the amount and with a balance of $500, and with $600 yet to be received, the total amount reaches $1,366. The money available, it is understood, was to be used for the housing, feeding and the welfare of the pupils.

Dr. B. R. McClellan, a member of the committee, presented to Superintendent Waltz, the matter of securing the new Seminary Building on West Third Street, for use for the Opportunity School. This plan was vetoed by Superintendent Waltz, because of cost, stating that it would take $1000 a year to rent the building. With the budgeting of the amount allotted the school, as discussed by the committee members, the balance needed to conduct the school, amounting to a fraction over two hundred dollars, was pledged by Dr. McClellan, who said he would enlist the services of the citizens of the city in raising the amount.

The standpoint of school officials in moving the forty to fifty pupils of the Parish house, to be taught with the twenty-five or thirty Opportunity School, pupils of Springfield Hill, is opposed by residents of Springfield Hill, who state that the name applied to the Springfield Hill pupils, does not coincide with that of the Parish House pupils, for the reason that they are not taught or cared for in the same way. The pupils of Springfield Hill Building are those who have been retained in their school duties, school patrons say, while those of the Parish House require different attention.

A meeting of the School Board was scheduled for Wednesday morning, when the members would meet with Dr. B. R. McClellan to discuss the matter, but owing to the absence of two members, the meeting was postponed until Thursday afternoon at one o'clock, when the pledge of Dr. McClellan, and the plan reached at the meeting Tuesday, would be presented to the Board by Superintendent Waltz.

Rheumatism Makes an Invalid In Arms

Wednesday Health Talk No. 35.

By G. C. DONOHOO, D. C.

When rheumatism attacks a child it makes a temporary invalid in arms of its victim, and may result in a deformity lasting a lifetime. Rheumatism is an acid poisoning of the body due to under elimination of wastes and poisons through the kidneys and bowels.

When kidneys and bowels fail to function normally for any period of time long enough to result in rheumatism, the cause is found in the spinal condition. Due to displacement of spinal bones causing pressure on spinal nerves to liver and kidneys there is weakened functioning, and the poisons gradually accumulate. By chiropractic spinal adjustments the nerver lines are freed and the kidneys and bowels are restored to normal vigor. The poisons gradually clear from the system and health returns. There is nothing that will remove the cause like chiropractic.

WELL IN A WEEK

"On Sunday night our son, Bobby, was feeling badly. Monday his legs were swollen and he could not walk. We carried him downstairs and called a doctor who said it was rheumatism. He called another in on the case and both agreed it was rheumatism. This was on Wednesday and on Thursday we called the chiropractor. On Friday the boy could move his feet and on Saturday he went out to play with other children."—MR. and MRS. G. PHILLIPS, Chiropractic Research Bureau, No. 1337N.

GOOD TURNOUT FOR PARADE IN DAYTON IS NOW EXPECTED

Dr. C. H. Denner is anxious that a good representation of the Third Battalion of the 148th, Infantry, a unit of the Thirty-seventh division, be present for the parade of the outfit next Monday in connection with the American Legion state convention in Dayton.

Several Xenia and Greene County soldiers were members of this unit of the Thirty-seventh, which was one of the most important combat divisions of the American Expeditionary Forces. It was the Third Battalion of the 148th, which was first to cross the Scheldt of Escaut River, as it is some times called, in Belgium.

The river was forded November 2, 1918, the handful of men, representing the remnants of two companies, in charge of Lieutenant Cullen of New Lexington, representing the first allied troops to set foot on the other side of the stream. Although Cullen and his 40-soldiers repulsed two infantry attacks after a severe battle and airplane fire, the French brigade that replaced them a few days later was captured entirely by the Germans.

Company I, Xenia's unit in the old Third Ohio National Guard infantry, later became a part of the Thirty-seventh, and was credited to full strength in Xenia. Dayton and other cities in this section. The Battalion has been accorded a place in honor in the Thirty-seventh Division parade, and former members are asked to be on hand. Dr. Denner was a Captain in the medical detachment connected with the Third Battalion.

GOING IT TOO HARD?

Overwork, worry, overeating and lack of exercise and sleep are responsible for much kidney trouble. If your back aches and the kidneys seem weak, rest up and use Doan's Kidney Pills.

Leonard Jones, car inspector, Home Ave., Xenia, gave the following statement Aug. 2, 1917: "Heavy lifting while working in a cramped position while repairing cars brought on lumbago. I was stiff and lame across the small of my back. After I had worked in a cramped position for a few minutes I could hardly straighten up. I heard of Doan's Kidney Pills and began to use them. They certainly proved to be the medicine I needed for I began to get better immediately and after using a few boxes was rid of this attack. Since then I have resorted to Doan's at the first symptom of lumbago and they quickly relieve it."

On Aug. 15, 1921, Mr. Jones confirmed the above statement by saying: "Doan's deserve the highest praise I can give them as they absolutely cured me of kidney trouble some years ago."

Efficient Housekeeping

BY Laura A. Kirkman

CLEANING YOUR ROOMS THE RIGHT WAY

Many women, in cleaning a room, make more work for themselves than necessary. For instance, I once watched an inexperienced housekeeper clean her floors, then use a wool mop on her walls, with the obvious result that the clean floors received a fine sprinkling of dust and needed to be done over again!

Of course few of us make such glaring mistakes. Yet, for the sake of the Beginner Housekeeper, I am going to give the following suggestions:

Step One: Dust and remove all bric-a-brac from the room. (Clean the large rugs with a vacuum cleaner, but take the small ones out of doors to receive a thorough sweeping and shaking. Also apply the vacuum cleaner attachments to upholstered furniture.)

Step Two: Cover the cleaned up-holstered furniture with sheets, covering them with newspapers. Now brush your curtains with a soft brush to dislodge dust which may cling to them, and pin them back. Cover a broom with a white cloth bag (or use a clean white wall mop) and go over the ceiling and walls. Dust back of all pictures with a soft-haired brush as you clean the walls.

Step Three: Having brushed down ceiling, walls, picture-backs, gone into crevices in woodwork, dusted furniture, cleaned windows if necessary, and used a long handled brush on the radiator, the next step is to go over the bare wood floor with a soft-haired brush and sweep all the dust into a pile in the middle; take up this pile by brushing it onto newspapers (to be burned later), then go over the floor with an oiled mop. If furniture or woodwork is to be especially polished, now is the time to do such work. Floors are also re waxed at this stage.

The work is now practically finished. All that remains is to uncover the furniture and rugs, bring back the small rugs from outside, replace bric-a-brac, and clean the vacuum cleaner and the other tools of work before putting them away in the cleaning closet.

There is a very real satisfaction in "doing things right." A room cleaned thoroughly and efficiently, as I have just described, can defy the inspection of the most critical.

I have not mentioned the garb of the housekeeper who does such cleaning, for I have assumed that even an inexperienced housewife would don a sweeping cap and voluminous apron before attempting such work.

A Stenographer's Romance

BY JANE PHELPS

YOUTH CALLS TO YOUTH

Chapter 53

As the days passed Nellie constantly congratulated herself on having obtained a room at Mrs. Doty's. Not that she mingled with the other boarders, in fact she seldom saw them excepting at meals—save Mrs. Roberts, to whose room she had been invited—but they were all politely pleasant to her, and she enjoyed the morning and evening chatter about the big table. Chatter that touched upon every subject, from the way things should be cooked and served, to the political situation, both foreign and domestic.

When young Horne, Nellie had learned his surname was Donald, was at dinner they often appealed to him, and Nellie thought his knowledge marvelous. She had encountered him two or three times in the hall and he had stopped to chat. Nellie had told him she was a stenographer, that she was with the same firm as Miss Jones. Then one night they both came in at the same time. He topped her rather awkwardly and said:

"I have two tickets for a new show, would you go with me, Miss Riley?"

"Would she?"

"They're good seats," he went on. "Even if they are passes."

"Thank you, I should love to go," Nellie replied with her usual directness. "Aren't passes just as good as any tickets?"

"Better, because they cost me nothing. I couldn't afford orchestra seats to this show. They're way beyond my purse."

"What is it?"

"The 'Music Box Revue.'"

"Oh, really! I have wanted to see that awfully. What time shall I be ready?"

"About 8 o'clock. I'll meet you in the parlor." A small room used as a meeting place for the guests when socially inclined.

Nellie ate her dinner in a glow of anticipation. She had thought perhaps to see the "Revue" from the gallery, but to go with a nice-looking young man like Donald Horne; to sit in the orchestra, would be so much nicer.

She dressed with care, wearing a dark frock, but one a trifle low in the neck, fresh gloves, and dainty shoes. She brushed her bobbed hair more carefully than usual urging each refractory curl in place. Then, just as the hands on her wrist watch pointed to eight, she went down to the parlor unoccupied save by the acid-faced young woman, Miss Pitt, who remarked:

"I don't take some folks long to get acquainted."

"Some never do," Nellie saucily replied.

"I wasn't brought up to go gadding about alone with young men."

"Too bad—perhaps you might learn to now if they would ask you."

Donald appeared, and any reply Miss Pitt may have intended was effaced by the smile she gave him, and the remark addressed to him:

"I hope you will enjoy yourself, Mr. Horne."

"I know I shall!" Donald replied gayly. "How charming you look, Miss Riley. I guess we'd better run along."

"Old cat!" Nellie said to herself as she left the room. "Doesn't have a good time herself and doesn't want any one else to."

Donald Horne was a delightful companion, a gay natural fellow whose aspiration to be a newspaper editor he confided to Nellie.

"Oh,—how wonderful!" She never had been thrown with anyone connected with the literary world and to her it was one of wonderful attraction. "Oh, I'm nothing but a cub reporter now, but they all had to start some way!" he told her.

She admired his ambition, his unassuming manner. She also admired him. He had left off the goggles for a pair of nose glasses, wore a dinner coat, and was a well turned out looking young man. Never before had Nellie gone out with anyone who wore a dinner coat save old Mr. Robinson.

"I wish Cora could see us!" she thought.

They both enjoyed the play immensely, and it was the beginning of a friendship between them, one that led to outings of different sorts—plays when Donald had passes, motion pictures when he had not.

Mrs. Roberts smiled as they chaffed each other across the table, admired Nellie when she ran in to bid her goodnight before they went out, and often gave her good advice in a quiet way.

When Cora heard from Nellie of these outings, of Donald, she smiled contentedly. Nellie's admiration for Mr. George Fallon had meant nothing after all. She hoped Nellie would marry this young Horne who, Miss Jones had told her was a very worthy young man.
